and word got around to the H.A.L.O. Group, and they filled the gap tremendously," Fleming said. "They had such a great experience last show that we wanted them to come back."

Fleming said the group helped vendors move in as well as during the show passed out wristbands, and assist customers by carrying purchases to their cars.

"It's been so awesome to watch," Fleming said. "We had 75 vendors from 13 different states for this show. On our first day (Friday) we had about 4,800 people come through, which we were thrilled about. But just to see these young adults get experience working out in the public and have a little bit of what others have is so heart warming and inspiring. I'm so glad to have found the H.A.L.O. Group."

One of the four founders of the group, April Tew, expressed their appreciation to Fleming in working at the show.

"This is such a great experience for our students and they are truly having a great time," Tew said. "Like our executive director Angela Cuti said, you can learn a lot in the classroom, but when you get that hands-on experience you take away so much more."

Tew said opportunities like working the Vintage Market Days show, give the students a chance to work on all kinds of skills such as verbal skills, provide customer service and more.

"We can't thank Lynn and all of the Vintage Market Days show enough," Tew said. "They allowed us to have a table this year to pass out information and will provide us a donation to go towards the construction of the New Perry Hotel. And we want to thank the community for supporting in our mission and vision. It has just been so well received and we can't wait until the hotel it complete."

The H.A.L.O. Group purchased the New Perry Hotel about a year and a half ago, and hope to have it running by the end of 2020. For more information about the group go online to www.halogroup-ga.org.
